MS should be forced to donate $10 billion over the next 10 years to several (at least 3) nonprofit organisations which would then distribute to the money to the public schools who apply for a grant. MS should be divided at least into 2 separate companies one for the operating system, and one for its applications software including Explorer and MS Office. MS Explorer and the second most popular internet browser (Netscape Communicator) should both be bundled in the operating system, like other companies do.
